This amendment had been previously agreed to in the Committee of the Whole on Wednesday, September 6, by a recorded vote of 178 ayes to 176 noes; and

On a demand for a separate vote, rejected a conforming amendment previously agreed to in the Committee of the Whole. Agreed to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

Agreed To:

An amendment that makes the bill the exclusive "surveillance" means by which electronic surveillance may be conducted;

An amendment that allows the President to authorize warrantless electronic surveillance to acquire foreign intelligence information for up to one year during a war declared by Congress;

An amendment that gives the House and Senate Intelligence Committees the right to inform United States persons who have been under surveillance if the committees determine that no foreign intelligence information was obtained and that such notification would not harm national security;

A conforming amendment;

An amendment that requires a warrant application to include a certification by the Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs and an executive branch official confirmed by the Senate;

An amendment that deletes the criminal penalties for intentional disclosure of information obtained and for violation of the minimization standards; and

A clarifying amendment.

Rejected:

An amendment that sought to require a quarterly, rather than an annual, report from the Attorney General to the House and Senate Intelligence Committees concerning all electronic surveillance;

An amendment that sought to broaden the definition of "agent of a foreign power";

An amendment that sought to require the President to inform the House and Senate Intelligence Committees when he has any reason to believe that an individual with diplomatic immunity is engaging in electronic surveillance in the United States, and to also inform the target of the surveillance and the foreign power if he determines that to do so would not cause serious damage to national security (rejected by a recorded vote of 239 votes to 220 votes, Roll No. 753);

An amendment that sought to prohibit the bill from becoming effective until the President certifies that no individual with diplomatic immunity is engaged in electronic surveillance in the United States; and

An amendment that sought to terminate the provisions in the bill five years after the date of enactment (rejected by a division vote of 21 ayes to 28 noes).

An amendment in the nature of a substitute to the committee amendment (text of H.R. 1342) that, among other things, sought to strike the requirement for obtaining a warrant for electronic surveillance; strike the criminal standard for the issuance of United States warrants; and allow surveillance of a United States person if it was certified by the President, the Attorney General, and an executive branch office confirmed by the Senate (rejected by a recorded vote of 128 ayes to 249 noes; Roll No. 734).

And an amendment to the previous substitute that sought to require an annual report by the Attorney General on the total number of applications for orders approving electronic surveillance and the total number of orders granted or denied; and to require a report to the appropriate Member of Congress or congressional committee of any foreign government's attempt to impose, or attempt to suborn individual Members, or threaten a Member. A point of order against this amendment was overruled. Agreed to amend the title.

Subsequently, this passage was vacated and S. 1766, a similar Senate-passed bill, was placed in lieu of being amended to contain the language of the House bill as passed. Agreed to amend the title of the Senate bill. The Clerk was authorized to correct section numbers, cross-reference the bill, and punctuation in the engrossment of the House amendments to S. 1766.

Subsequently, agreed to take up amendments to reconsider the prior vote (agreed to by a 217-99 vote of 207 ayes to 10 noes, Roll No. 738).
